MEDIA RESOURCES FOR COVERAGE OF U.S.-CHINA TRADE ISSUES

Bob Davis, senior editor of the Wall Street Journal, has been covering international trade since 1991. Here’s what he reads to keep on top of the U.S.-China trade war:

SINOCISM, a subscription-based publication that curates links and commentary on Chinese and English language news about issues on China.

INSIDE TRADE, a subscription-based news service on trade.

Axios, CHINA COVERAGE.

THE WIRE, a digital news magazine dedicated to understanding and explaining China’s rise.

CHINAFILE, an online magazine published by the CENTER ON U.S.-CHINA RELATIONS AT THE ASIA SOCIETY.

CHINA LEADERSHIP MONITOR, a quarterly publication launched by the HOOVER INSTITUTION at Stanford University that focuses on current trends in China’s leadership politics.
